Darling Wife:

Just received both of your darling letters of Tuesday and Wednesday and am extremely happy to write you that I successfully passed the initiation last, without being killed. I assure you, love, that it was most impressive and such that I will remember to the last day of my life. Uncle Morris was here yesterday, but he couldn't rest, so he came to the lodge in time to see me go through. He certainly treated me wonderfully well, and last night told me he was going to see me all the way through, so far as money is concerned. So you see, Dovie dear, how anxious he is for me to go through. I am sure, too, that, please God, if I go through without being black-balled, I sure will derive a great deal of benefit and see where I can meet a number of nice young men, who I want Rose to meet. Certainly am sorry that Dr. Layon was black-balled, but perhaps he'll get in sooner or later, but first must let 12 months elapse from the time of his rejection. Now I am awaiting the results of my Notary Public application. Hope that goes through, too, as well as getting that proposition from Taylor.

As to Puristein's offer, I am not ready to advise mondea, as I want to be very, very careful of her money. I am sure I'll find something nice for her. I am still looking for a place where we can open a drug store, if possible, as I would like to get something for Rose. I am going to speak to Puristein further about it and be able to come to terms. As I go along, honey love, I'll advise you. I sure am constantly on the alert for something for mondea.

Honey, about the furniture, all we will have will be a bedroom set, library set, and kitchen furniture. I now realize that we don't need a living room set. If mondea lets us have the table, I will buy the chairs to it. Mondea wrote me that she will give us the desk, too. I suppose by now you spoke it over with mondea. Let me know what she said.

Toots, if mondea has the time and can make a standel, I sure hope and desire one. Rile he's much better than Tante Rosie's. Rose wrote me, telling me of how mondea felt and suffered at the wedding. It sure must have been awful, wasn't it? According to what Rose says, Tante Rosie surely didn't act as she should. Anyway, no use crying over spilled milk, its over, and am glad of it.

The inclosures, love, show you that I got that charter of incorporation, and sure was glad that I was successful. Hope I get a few more of them. Easy money, that.

I am getting cases little by little. My big damage suit will be filed shortly. I expect a large from Ripley, Tenn., where this action will be brought, to be here to-morrow, and make arrangement for him to come in on it.

Honey love, you do miss you terribly. I am constantly talking of and about you. You can hardly realize how much I love you, how I yearn for and miss you. If you were only here, I can assure you that we would be, oh so happy! Love dear, the month of March is nearly half way gone, so that leaves us about 6 weeks between us, before I can have my own darling wife here with me. Won't we be happy, eh, sweetheart.

Honey love, I will have to close now, as I am in the midst of preparation for to-morrow's case, which is the one I'm getting $100 for. I got $10 00/100 already, so you see, I got something already, so with all my love, kisses, and tight, tight squeezes and hugs,

Your own ever, welcomingly lovingly,

Jim.
